Dear Parents and Carers,

You may have seen last night's announcement from Boris Johnson about schools reopening for children in year six after half term.

The Prime Minister did make clear that reopening schools on June 1st is not yet confirmed and will depend on what happens with infection rates and other data over the next couple of weeks. We don't know when this will be confirmed, and we do not yet have any details of government expectations about opening safely for the children and staff in school.

At the moment we are waiting for more information from the government and guidance from the local authority and unions. We will be in contact with you when we have something more definite to go on. In the meantime the current arrangements for schools will continue.

Stay safe and we hope to provide you with more clarity soon.

Thank you for your support,

Mrs Parry-Jones
